Not illustrated. 1879 Excerpt: . . . the members of the society judge that the Church will be benefited by having a king or queen, or anybody else, put out of the way, it will be right for them to take any means to accomplish it. No action wicked in itself is really wicked unless the intention is evil. In taking oaths, the members of the society may make mental reservations to break them, if they can benefit the Church by so doing. If called upon to justify any of their actions, they may give a false motive instead of the real one. They may equivocate, may justify fraud and deceit, without any scruples of conscience. The Pope promises to grant them absolution for whatever they may do that in itself would be wrong, but which he will make right, because it is for the good of the Church. uNo member of the society shall submit himself to be examined before any court of justice without the permission of his superior. This makes the society superior to the State--to kings and emperors--superior to all law. If the members are cast into prison for refusing to testify, they are to account it all honor to suffer for the good of the Church. With the Popes blessing resting upon them, the members of the society go forth, in their enthusiasm, to establish the Church in eveiy land--threading the jungles of India; traversing the deserts of Africa; sailing along the rivers of China; making their way...
